Program and scope

Identity in Christ mentoring for teen girls, using the existing curriculum with age-appropriate conversations and assignments. The parent/guardian remains responsible for parental decisions and the teen’s care.

CWP provides Christ-centered Christian coaching, mentoring, discipleship and biblical education. Scripture, the Word of God, grounds teaching, prayer, journaling, reflection, accountability and practical application. The focus is identity in Jesus Christ. This is not psychotherapy, diagnosis, licensed mental health treatment, medical care or crisis intervention. Reta Wilson’s ongoing counseling education does not represent licensure or change this program’s scope. Participation creates no therapist-client relationship and does not require discontinuing professional care.

The journey begins with a 14-day foundation of Scripture and journaling, followed by the curriculum sessions and schedule confirmed with CWP. Identity in Christ includes 12 weekly sessions after that foundation. For another curriculum, the number and duration of sessions must be recorded in the agreed service details before signing.

Participation and expectations

Participation is voluntary. The participant may ask questions, decline to disclose sensitive details, request clarification or raise a concern. The participant agrees to engage respectfully, bring assigned materials and communicate scheduling needs. CWP does not guarantee a spiritual, emotional, behavioral, relational, health or financial outcome.

Minor consent and safeguarding

Permission and the young person's voice

The signing adult confirms authority to consent to this minor's participation and agrees to disclose any relevant restriction on that authority or on collection/contact arrangements. Provide only necessary details through a private channel. CWP will not resolve custody disputes or treat an intake form as proof of legal guardianship. The young person's willingness to participate is respected; no personal disclosure or religious response will be forced as proof of engagement.

Parent updates and mentoring privacy

Updates may cover attendance, completion of assignments, general growth, practical support at home and program logistics. Updates normally do not repeat every conversation or private journal entry. This is appropriate mentoring privacy, not a promise of therapist privilege or absolute secrecy. At an appropriate midpoint and at completion, CWP and the parent/guardian may review general progress and next steps.

Safety and legal duties override ordinary privacy. Suspected abuse, neglect, exploitation, threats or serious safety concerns may require reporting or protective action. When the concern involves a caregiver, notice to that person will not be promised or allowed to delay required reporting or compromise safety. Appropriate authorities or safe adults may need to be involved. Parent consent does not replace or limit legal reporting duties.

Communication and meeting boundaries

Before sessions begin, CWP and the guardian will agree on meeting format, location, parent contact arrangements, permitted communication channels and check-in expectations. Assignment-related direct messages, if permitted, are limited to agreed channels and hours; no disappearing messages or secrecy requests. The participant can raise concerns directly or with another trusted adult. No transport, overnight activity, medical treatment permission or image/publicity consent is granted by this agreement.

Support outside the mentoring scope

CWP does not provide crisis monitoring or licensed treatment. Immediate danger requires emergency help. Significant concerns may require appropriate licensed, medical, pastoral or protective support. Participation will be reviewed if mentoring cannot meet the young person's needs safely. Prayer and spiritual reflection do not replace necessary safety or professional care.

Personal use and content protection

Ownership and permitted personal use

CWP materials include its original authored curriculum text, workbooks, journals, worksheets, lesson plans, graphics, recordings and restricted digital resources supplied for this program, to the extent owned or licensed by CWP. CWP and other applicable rights holders retain their intellectual property. Enrollment purchases services and permitted use; it does not transfer copyright or grant teacher certification, publication rights or a license to deliver the curriculum to others.

CWP grants the named participant a limited, nonexclusive personal-use license to use the supplied materials for this enrolled journey. The participant may write in the workbook, retain lawfully supplied personal copies and print one personal working copy of an authorized digital handout, unless the handout expressly permits more. A parent/guardian may review a minor's materials to support participation. Any access period stated for a separate digital resource remains applicable.

No unauthorized copying or distribution

Without CWP's prior written permission, the participant and, for a minor, the signing parent/guardian agree not to scan, photocopy, reproduce, email, message, forward, sell or distribute copies of protected materials to other participants, friends, groups, churches or businesses. They will not post materials on websites or social media, place them in shared drives or public repositories, share access codes or login credentials, or upload protected materials to AI systems or other third-party content libraries.

They will not translate, rebrand, adapt or create a competing workbook, course or teaching product using CWP's protected expression; remove authorship or copyright notices; present CWP materials as their own; or use the supplied participant materials to lead, train, teach, certify or commercially serve others. Teaching or church/group use requires a separate written authorization and any applicable licensing or certification requirements.

Recording and reasonable exceptions

Neither party may audio-record, video-record, photograph or transcribe a private session without separate prior informed consent from everyone involved and any required guardian consent. No publicity, testimonial, photography or media release is included in this agreement.

These terms do not claim ownership of Scripture, public-domain material, general ideas, methods, facts, a participant's personal story or original reflections, or third-party content. They do not restrict rights that cannot lawfully be restricted, lawful fair use, required disclosures, reporting misconduct or safety concerns, or sharing this agreement with legal or professional advisers. They do not prevent a participant from discussing personal learning or experiences without distributing protected materials.

Addressing a possible violation

Notify CWP promptly about suspected unauthorized access or distribution. CWP may request that unauthorized sharing stop, that unauthorized copies under the person's control be removed and that access credentials be secured. CWP may suspend affected digital access while addressing a substantiated concern, with reasonable notice where appropriate. Any remedy must be available under applicable law; this agreement imposes no automatic fine or guaranteed damages. Ownership and restrictions on unauthorized copying continue after the program ends.

Family payment and program arrangements

Price and payment schedule

The current standard program total is $1,025, including the curriculum workbook and Identity & Reflection Journal. The standard $250 initial payment counts toward the total and leaves $775. An existing, scholarship or other individually agreed arrangement applies only when recorded below and accepted by both parties. No additional fee, recurring charge or automatic debit is authorized by signing this agreement alone.

Payments already received: _____

Initial payment and due date: _____

Remaining balance: _____

Installment amounts and exact due dates: _____

Number and duration of curriculum sessions: _____

Scheduling and ending participation

Sessions are arranged by mutual agreement. Notify CWP as early as possible if a session must change. CWP will give reasonable notice of provider cancellations and work to reschedule. Repeated absences may require a written revised schedule or a pause. No undisclosed missed-session fee applies.

All initial, partial and installment payments toward the agreed curriculum price are nonrefundable for a change of mind, missed sessions, voluntary withdrawal or a decision not to begin or finish, except where applicable law requires otherwise. A payment plan divides the full agreed program price; it is not pay per session or cancel anytime. The responsible adult payer agrees to pay the unpaid agreed balance on the written due dates even if participation stops or the curriculum is completed before the final payment date. A written reduction, scholarship, release or revised arrangement accepted by both parties can change the balance. No automatic charge, extra fee or accelerated due date is authorized. Mandatory cancellation, refund, dispute and other legal rights remain protected, including rights if CWP does not provide agreed services. These revised terms apply only to agreements accepted on or after November 1, 2026; they do not rewrite earlier signed agreements.

Cancellation notice: Notify CWP in writing if you wish to pause or discontinue participation.

Privacy and appropriate disclosure

CWP handles intake answers, mentoring information and records with care and restricts access to those who need it for program administration or an appropriate safety or legal purpose. Absolute confidentiality cannot be promised. Disclosure may be necessary for suspected abuse or neglect, exploitation, serious safety concerns, legal reporting duties, lawful orders or protective action. Only information appropriate to the purpose should be shared.

Intake questionnaires are separate from this agreement. Use the intake form for preparation information; do not submit emergencies there. Email, texts and online forms are not continuously monitored or emergency services. In immediate danger, contact local emergency services rather than waiting for CWP. CWP does not require a participant to discontinue licensed or medical care.

Guardian acceptance and teen assent

Agreement and electronic records

This completed agreement and any specifically identified, attached payment or cancellation schedule are the terms accepted by the parties. Intake answers and welcome guides provide context but do not silently change this agreement. Material changes require mutual written acceptance. If a provision cannot be enforced, the remaining provisions apply to the extent permitted by law. Applicable mandatory law controls; this template does not add mandatory arbitration, a liability release or a waiver of the right to report a concern.

Each signer may choose a paper signature instead of electronic signing without an additional signing fee. Electronic signing requires access to email and a device capable of opening, downloading and printing a PDF. Before signing, the signer must be able to review and retain the entire completed agreement. Contact CWP to request paper or withdraw electronic-delivery consent before completion. Withdrawal does not automatically cancel a completed agreement.

When an electronic signature service is used, the signer intends the signature to signify acceptance of the completed agreement. CWP will provide each signing party a final copy and retain the signed PDF together with the service's completion certificate or audit trail. Typing a name in a Google intake form is not a substitute for this separate signing process.

Review and signatures

Before signing, I reviewed the completed service details, agreed total price, payment dates, content-use license, privacy and Christian coaching scope. I had an opportunity to ask questions. I understand that payments are nonrefundable for voluntary withdrawal or a change of mind, and the responsible adult payer remains obligated for the unpaid agreed balance even after withdrawal or early completion, subject to mandatory legal rights. No specific outcome is promised. I receive a copy of this completed agreement.

The parent/legal guardian signs in their own capacity for their promises and the payment arrangement, and gives participation permission within their legal authority. The teen's assent records willingness to participate; it is not a substitute for guardian consent or a guarantee that a minor can be bound by every contract term.

I understand this is Christian mentoring. I may ask questions, say if something feels unsafe or uncomfortable, and ask to pause. I will respect the materials and will not copy or send them to other people without permission. I understand that serious safety concerns may need to be shared with appropriate adults or authorities.
